One job: Name which small reward has been steering you, and where.

Do this week

One good thing that no one will ever know about. Then do not mention it.

I did one on: _____

(Do not write what it was.)

Tell him which small reward it is and what it has cost you. Do not tell him the secret thing.

Before the room

Read this week: Chapter 7, Live for a reward that lasts.

Aim: Work for God's pay, not the room's. Every man lives for a reward. The only question is which one.

One job: Name which small reward has been steering you, and where.

Pitfall: Do not preach the wait, the load, or going first. Do not sell a truck as heaven. Do not preview Part 2. Close Part 1 on the prize.

Time: about an hour. Church, small group, or a man alone.

A steadfast man stops waiting, picks up the weight, goes first, and works for God's pay, not the room's.

Say it. Tonight is the fourth mark. Then Part 1 is in his mouth.

> Hebrews 12:2 NIV
> fixing our eyes on Jesus, the pioneer and perfecter of faith. For the joy set before him he endured the cross, scorning its shame, and sat down at the right hand of the throne of God.

Open (2-3 min)

A man plants pecan trees at seventy-one. He will not eat one. Somebody's grandson will. He is spending his last strength on a harvest he will not taste, for the One who is watching him dig.

Say the four. Sit down.

Hit

You are naming the prize.

Every man already lives for a reward. Applause. Money. Being wanted. Being right. A father's nod. Comfort. Being remembered. They pay out. They run out. They are controlled by someone other than God.

Jesus did not endure because pain is holy. He endured for the joy set before him. The Father who sees in secret rewards. The reward is not a bonus check separate from Him. It is Him. Well done. Come and share your master's happiness.

Wanting that is not mercenary. A man who can do good nobody sees, lose an argument, stay through a hard decade, take the low place, and forgive is a man who works for God's pay. The local scoreboard is not the game.

Point at Chapter 7. Then shut up. Do not open Part 2.

Table

Three. Wait.

1. Which small reward has been steering you, and where?
2. Where have you been performing so someone would think well of you?
3. What is one good thing you will do that no one will ever know about?

Young: check who you are performing for. Single: a wife is a gift, not your pay. Married: she is a person, not a prize. Hurt: vindication may never come this side; let it go as your reward. Older: being remembered is too small to live for. The job going well: the office claps on cue; competence is not God's pay.

Run the closer

One prize. One secret move.

Name it. Which small reward has been steering you, and where. One sentence, out loud.

Do this week. One good thing that no one will ever know about. Not your wife. Not your brother. Not the men you meet with. Then do not mention it.

Tell a brother. Tell him which small reward it is and what it has cost you. Do not tell him the secret thing.

Carry this. Every man lives for a reward. The only question is which one.

If he cannot be asked whether he went back to the small one, he told the wrong man.

Solo note

Read Chapter 7. Name the small reward and where. Do the secret good the same week. Tell one man the small reward, not the secret. The small ones will still be for sale tomorrow. They cannot hold you.

Do not open Part 2 until Dean says.
