Participant worksheet

Read this week: Chapter 29, Give your son a day he will not forget.

One job: Name whether you got a day, what you used instead, and whether your son has one coming. Then put date, men, place, token, and the four names on the calendar.

The line

A steadfast man stops waiting, picks up the weight, goes first, and works for God's pay, not the room's.

Write it once.

> Joshua 4:6-7 NIV
> to serve as a sign among you. In the future, when your children ask you, "What do these stones mean?" tell them that the flow of the Jordan was cut off before the ark of the covenant of the LORD. When it crossed the Jordan, the waters of the Jordan were cut off. These stones are to be a memorial to the people of Israel forever.

Name it

Check one (both are the real page):
- [ ] I have a son (or stepson) in my life
- [ ] I do not. A younger man in reach still has ears

Whether you got a day, what you used instead, and whether your son has one coming. Out loud tonight.

First-year dad: the pavilion can wait. Put the date and the sentence anyway. A seed is still a stone.

Do this week

Date. Men. Place. Token. Three names and the fourth written. On the calendar. If no son, ask to stand at a day, or ask a mother about a fatherless boy.

Newborn season: you are not throwing a party at 3am. You are choosing a day he can grow into.

Date: _____

Men / place / token / four names:

Tell a brother

Ask him to be one of the men. Tell him what to prepare: one story, one failure, one charge. If he has a son, ask when his day is and offer to stand.

I told (name): _____ on (day): _____

He will ask: _____

No-son seat: still tell one man. Same week. Name the younger man. You are not a guest on this page.

Carry this

The day is the marker. The Tuesdays are the handoff. A stone with no story is only a rock.

Write it once.

Before the room

Read this week: Chapter 29, Give your son a day he will not forget.

Aim: The day is the marker. The Tuesdays are the handoff. A stone with no story is only a rock. Series close. No Part 5 on this mic.

One job: Name whether you got a day, what you used instead, and whether your son has one coming. Then put date, men, place, token, and the four names on the calendar.

Pitfall: Do not reprint the name as the whole hour. Do not reprint the hill as the whole night. Do not dump Part 5. Kind. Men with no son stay. Keep single-ownership / no-son seat + first-year beat on the page. Son trilogy closes tonight.

Time: about an hour. Church, small group, or a man alone.

A steadfast man stops waiting, picks up the weight, goes first, and works for God's pay, not the room's.

Say it. Do not unpack it. Tonight is the marker.

> Joshua 4:6-7 NIV
> to serve as a sign among you. In the future, when your children ask you, "What do these stones mean?" tell them that the flow of the Jordan was cut off before the ark of the covenant of the LORD. When it crossed the Jordan, the waters of the Jordan were cut off. These stones are to be a memorial to the people of Israel forever.

Open (2-3 min)

Rented pavilion. Cake. Phones up. Leftover sheet cake in a box. He thinks he marked something. A party is not a crossing. No stone. No sentence. No before and after.

Say the four. Sit down.

Hit

What do these stones mean. Markers. Days. Stones a man can point to. Without that day he guesses. Counterfeits. Give him the real one.

Not a party. A marker: men, a word, a weight, a welcome. Father plus two to four men who will still be around in ten years. Outside. Early. Somewhere with weight. Each man brings one true thing: a story, a failure and what he did after, a charge. Father brings the three names and the fourth. A token he can hold. Prayer. Welcome. Then breakfast where the men talk to him like a man.

The day changes nothing by itself. Tuesday makes it real. Marker without Tuesday is a stone with no story.

If you never had a day, you can still give one. If you have no son in the house, stay. Ask to stand at a day, or ask a mother about a fatherless boy, in the light.

First-year dad: you are not throwing a pavilion at 3am. Put a date and a sentence on a page. A seed is still a stone. Do not lengthen this into a second sermon.

Point at Chapter 29. Then shut up. No Part 5 tonight.

Table

Three. Wait.

1. Did you get a day, and what did you use instead if not?
2. Does your son have one coming, or has he been guessing?
3. Date, men, place, token: what goes on the calendar this week?

Young: receive one if you can; mark a younger man if you cannot set a son's day yet. Single: you are not a guest; be ready with one true thing. Married: you set the date; not a pavilion party. Hurt: go slow; no day is a wound. Older: grandson; grown son still needs a stone; never-a-son is not a mascot. The job going well: you already mark a close at work; put a date on the page for the boy.

Run the closer

One date. One stone. One handoff.

Name it. Whether you got a day, what you used instead, and whether your son has one coming. Out loud tonight. (Son in the house, or younger man in reach? Both own the page.)

Do this week. Date. Men. Place. Token. Three names and the fourth written. On the calendar. If no son, ask to stand at a day, or ask a mother about a fatherless boy.

Tell a brother. Ask him to be one of the men. Tell him what to prepare: one story, one failure, one charge. If he has a son, ask when his day is and offer to stand.

Carry this. The day is the marker. The Tuesdays are the handoff. A stone with no story is only a rock.

If he only hears that he should throw a better party, he nods and goes back to the pavilion. Get the date and the men on the page.

Solo note

Read Chapter 29. Put the date down. Ask the men. Write the names. Tell one brother. You are not throwing a party by Monday. You are choosing a stone he can point to.

Series close. W2 through W24. No Part 5 on this mic. Do not open week 25 tonight.
